

Building Tomorrow's Healthcare Leaders in Asia Today

The Asian Institute for Healthcare Leadership and Management (Asian HEAL) is a leadership knowledge platform for Asia's healthcare professionals. We champion an Asian-focused approach to addressing healthcare management challenges in Asia by enhancing regional capabilities, developing a cadre of astute healthcare leaders, and fostering regional collaboration.

For Asia, By Asia

Culture, society, and resource availability are crucial factors in determining the feasibility, adaptability, and scalability of care models. The nuanced differences in Asia's patient population and their needs require healthcare management solutions to be adapted for them to achieve their true value for care improvement.

The search for such innovative healthcare models must be led by astute leaders who have the experience, insight, and ability to identify and address challenges. There is a need to bring together healthcare management expertise from Asia, to create health system transformation solutions for Asia, and to develop an Asian pipeline of healthcare leaders for the future.

As a hub for Asia's healthcare leaders to share their knowledge and expertise, Asian HEAL aims to refine healthcare ecosystems so that they are defined by the needs of patient populations and their effective care journeys. Leveraging the wide connections established throughout the region, our network of healthcare practitioners and leaders advocate for cross-border education, research, and knowledge-sharing.

Practical and Tailored Learning

As Asia's healthcare landscape develops, so must its leaders.

Breadth of Learning

Healthcare systems management is a multi-disciplinary field that involves not just the medical discipline. Recognising this, we bring together various subject experts to educate the next generation of healthcare leaders in business strategy, finance, IT and data management, communications, patient experience, operations, and risk management.

Depth of Field

With a finger on the pulse of innovation and an eye for the localised context, we aim to create a core knowledge base that integrates lessons from around the region, enabling detailed learning that transcends borders. Existing innovative healthcare models that have found success in Asia will be studied at length, with the intention of becoming a basis for inspiration in future health system developments.

Crafted for You

Customised to Meet Your Needs

We offer non-credit bearing training programmes that are tailored to specific countries and health systems. Our faculty will engage with you to understand your needs, crafting a syllabus that addresses challenges and opportunities in your organisation.

Bring your real life challenges to the classroom and leverage the shared knowledge to tackle them head-on.

Curated for the 21st Century Professional

Asian HEAL has launched an Executive Master in Healthcare Leadership and Management designed for the busy healthcare professional in mind. The part-time programme provides a unique opportunity for healthcare leaders to not only learn from practitioners in the field, but also to engage in networking and exchange with each other through a structured learning approach.

The 15-month programme comprises 8 intensive segments and offers immersive learning experiences across Asia through regional site visits to hospitals, healthcare partners and government agencies, exposing learners with real world examples of models of care and health systems in Asia.

A Community of Healthcare Leaders

Learn from Esteemed Practitioners

We bring together a cadre of faculty members who are themselves prominent leaders in their respective fields to share their knowledge in our training programmes. Learn from their lived experiences, their leadership journey, and their approaches to solving the complex issues faced in managing hospitals and health systems in Asia.
